THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW IS UPHELD

SACCO, VANZETTI, MADEIROS, ANARCHISTS, PAY PENALTY

For the Murder of the Paymaster At South Braintree, Mass., Seven Years Ago—The Murderers and Their Friends Pulled Every Wire and Used All the Influence At Their Command To Stave Off the Execution—World Wide Interest In the Condemned Men Who Were Executed Monday at Midnight.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti shortly after midnight paid the penalty of death exacted by the state for murder at Charlestown, Massachusetts, state prison.

Celestino Madeiros preceded them to the electric chair by a few minutes, the world-known radicals following as rapidly as the execution routine would permit.

Madeiros died at 12:09 a. m., for the murder of Wrentham bank cashier. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed for the murder of a paymaster and his guard at Braintree more than seven years ago. Sacco was dead at 12:19 and Vanzetti at 12:26 a. m.

Inside and outside of the high prison wall stood a small army of armed guards. Waiting also were the press wires to inform the world that the long fight to save the men was at an end.

The fight in behalf of the men continued until the last minute.

Both Sacco and Vanzetti made brief speeches in the death chamber before they took their seats in the chair, Vanzetti protesting his innocence to the last.

Sacco, pale but steady, shouted in Italian: "Long live anarchy," as he sat down in the chair.

Then in broken English he went on: "Farewell my wife and child and all my friends."

The straps were being adjusted as he said his last words: "Good evening, gentlemen! Farewell, mother!"

Vanzetti entered the death chamber the calmest of all the three men. Shaking hands with two of the guards as he came thru the door of the execution chamber, he walked unassisted to the chair and seated himself.

As the guards began the hasty adjustment of straps to his head and body he began a speech.

In the much broken English that characterized his dramatic plea for "justice" when sentence was passed on him in Dedham on April 9, he declared:

"I wish to tell you I am innocent and never connected with any crime, but sometimes some sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime, not only of this one but all. I am an innocent man."

Then, just as the guards slipped the straps and head cap in place, cutting off further speech, he shouted:

"I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."

A moment after the official witnesses entered the death chamber Madeiros was led in between two guards. The youth, who had won five respites because of his confession that a gang with which he was connected committed the South Braintree murders, was stolid and expressionless.

His eyes wandered about the little group of witnesses as he was strapped to the chair, but he said nothing.

Madeiros came in at 12:02:47. At 12:03:37 the shock was applied. He was pronounced dead at 12:09:35.

Then came Sacco. Apart from the prison pallor the little shoe worker who had become an international figure showed no sign of his long hunger strike. He walked erect between the guards, his eyes flashing brighter about the group in the death chamber as he came.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were convicted of the murder of a paymaster and his guard in a hold-up in South Braintree on April 15, 1920.

Both were known to department of justice operatives because of radical activities. Before trial of the South Braintree holdup Vanzetti was convicted of a robbery while armed.

The state's case in the South Braintree matter rested on identification by witnesses; the fact that both men were heavily armed when arrested, Sacco with a revolver claimed to be that carried by the slain guard; a cap identified as Sacco's found on murder scene, and various other circumstantial evidence.

The defense contended the men were armed because they feared deportation as radicals; produced witnesses to contradict identification, and charged collusion between federal and state officials, persecution for political ideas and prejudice on the part of trial justice and jury foreman.

Sacco worked in a shoe factory in Stoughton. Vanzetti was a fish peddler in Plymouth.

The monastery was damaged to the extent of $10,000 and windows in houses for blocks around were shattered. Residents were thrown from their beds.

Middletown—Evidence gathered by police today gives rise to the theory that Clem Miller, 38, found dead on the Dixie highway near here late Sunday was struck by three autos, following a fight between his brother, Joseph Miller, and Robert Wilkerson of Trenton, at a camp where they had been drinking.

Troy —The first arrests in airplane thievery were reported to police today by Detroit authorities. J. W. Atherton, of Oklahoma, and Ed. Hull of Stillwater, Oregon, are being held on suspicion in that city for the theft of an airplane from an airport here several days ago.

SELECTION OF SEED CORN IS SO IMPORTANT

Proper Care Now Insures a Good Start For Best Results For Corn in 1928.

With corn prospects indicating the production of one-fourth less corn in Ohio this year than was produced last year, Pickaway county farmers can well afford to give the selection and storing of seed corn some attention. Stalk selection is the best method of seed corn selection since one can get the history of conditions under which each ear was produced. It takes 16 to 18 ears of corn to furnish seed for an acre. It pays to select twice this amount at the time of selection to provide for culling undesirable corn after it has dried out. Seed corn should be husked and raked on the drier as soon as secured.

Avoid selecting ears from prematurely ripe stalks. Discard ears showing evidence of disease. Place the ears on the drier so that they do not touch each other to avoid the development of harmful molds, etc. A little planning now and preparation for seed corn is our best assurance of a satisfactory start on the 1928 corn crop.

CORN BORER MARCHES SOUTH.

The recent reports of the federal field scouts show that European corn borer has been discovered in Franklin, Union, Shelby, Delaware, Harrison and Jefferson counties.

This means that the corn borer is just across the border from the Pickaway plains. No official infestation or the corn borer has yet been discovered in Pickaway county however. These facts indicate the problem which will soon confront the Pickaway corn grower. Clean harvesting low cutting, destruction of standing stalks after harvest will aid materially in keeping this enemy in check.

CITIZENS AND ELECTIONS

Only persons sufficiently interested in elections to go voluntarily to the polls ought to vote, in the opinion of Prof. W. B. Munroe, of Harvard University, President of the American Political Science Association. "The man who has to be routed out on election day contributes nothing to government," he says. Well, possibly. Only the trouble is that so many of those interested enough to go voluntarily to the polls are people who want something for themselves—jobs, contracts, immunity to violate the law in various ways, and such. Wind, weather and high water can't keep them from voting. But citizens who simply have a disinterested concern in good government often won't take the trouble to go to the polls unless they are prodded. The individual who is busy, or who is in a hurry to get home, is apt to excuse himself on the ground that his vote won't be missed. President Munroe's plan might work in a college. It is hardly suited to this rude, rough world of city elections—unless government is to be turned over entirely to "the boys."—Kansas City Times.

Tarts Are Delights For Children; Cobblers Easiest of All Baked Desserts

"The Queen of Hearts She made some tarts All on a summer's day; The Knave of Hearts He stole those tarts, And took them clean away," Mother Goose Rhyme.

The tart is the forerunner of America's favorite dessert,—the fruit pie. It was popular in England long before America was colonized. Tarts are really open face pies in miniature. They are the delight of children, who, in the tart, have a whole pie all to themselves. Grown-ups are also fond of them.

They are excellent ways in which to use left-over pie crust with fruit or berries. Jelly centers are frequently used and few foods have a more attractive appearance than the tart with the bright red jelly center.

In the cobbler, we have the baked dessert which is easiest of all to make. We are now entering upon the season when fruits and berries are most plentiful. Of course, we all love them raw, but, nevertheless, we sometimes tire of them in this condition, and the cobbler is an ideal way in which to serve them cooked. There are few more alluring desserts than a fruit or berry cobbler when served with a delicate sauce.

In the following recipes, evaporated milk is recommended because the tempting appearance of both the tart and the cobbler is greatly improved by the delicate brown which results when it is used.

Plain Pastry for Tarts

2 cups pastry flour 1/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup cold fat 1/4 cup evaporated milk
1 tsp. salt

Sift flour with the salt. Rub fat in with tips of fingers until the appearance is that of coarse corn meal. Add enough liquid to mix lightly to a medium stiff dough. When rolling out use as little hard wheat flour as possible to dust the board. Roll lightly. Bake at 425 to 450° F. Yield: Sufficient for 12 tart shells.

Fill tarts with sweetened slightly cooked blueberries or raspberries and top with whipped cream sauce.

Whipped Cream Sauce

1 cup whipping cream 1/4 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup sugar

Chill cream and evaporated milk and whip until stiff. Fold in sugar and keep chilled until ready to serve.

Peach Cobbler

2 cups pastry flour 4 tbsp. evaporated milk diluted with 4 tsp. baking powder 6 tbsp. water
1 tsp. salt 8 large peaches
5 tbsp. fat 1 cup sugar
1 tsp. butter 1 tbsp. water

Sift flour with baking powder and salt twice. Rub fat into flour with fingers until appearance is like coarse corn meal. Add liquid to dry ingredients and mix quickly but thoroughly. Toss dough onto board dusted with bread flour. Pat or roll out to 1/4-inch thickness. Have peaches pared and cut into 1/4-inch slices. Place peaches in a buttered pan that is deep enough to hold them. Sprinkle with sugar, add butter in bits and then the water. Cover with dough. Gash top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a 400° F. oven. About 25 minutes are required for baking. Yield: 8 servings.

Cherry Roll

2 cups bread flour 1/4 cup evaporated milk diluted with
4 tsp. baking powder 1/2 cup water
1 tsp. salt 1 pint red cherries
2 tbsp. sugar 1 cup sugar
5 tbsp. fat

Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, salt, and 2 tablespoons sugar. Rub the fat in with the fingers and add diluted milk as for biscuit dough. Toss on a slightly floured board and knead for a minute. Roll in a rectangular shape to 1/4-inch thickness. Sprinkle over generously with well sugared, pitted cherries and roll up like a jelly roll. Place in a greased tin. Slash diagonally across top and bake in a medium oven. Serve with sweetened cherry sauce. Serves six.

Prince William of Sweden is a renowned animal hunter, who stands 6 feet 6 inches in his stocking feet, but, from an incident which has just become known, he was completely cowed by the microphone. It was apparently a premonition on his part that he was to have an unusual experience. At any rate, as he walked into the deadened studio and the broadcasting was just about to begin, he mopped his brow and exclaimed in an agonized tone: "This is terrible!"

As related by M. H. Aylesworth, Berlenbach, who fought young Stribling in the roped arena, suffered an even worse experience. Berlenbach was to give a five-minute talk on "Bravery in the Prize Ring," but became so terrified that he strode out of the studio, never to return.

FIND INDIAN GRAVES UNDER LARGE MOUND

Archeologists Study Burial Pyramid in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio.—A large Indian mound near Bainbridge, Ohio, is being sliced like a loaf of bread by exploring archeologists, who have found 30 Indian burials and a complicated internal structure.

What appears to be an elongate earthen pyramid is buried under the external surface of the so-called Selp mound. Seen from the outside the mound looked merely like a great rounded heap of earth, 240 feet long, 150 feet wide and 30 feet high.

Covers Indian Burials.

The basis of the mound is a lower mound, shorter and narrower than the covering structure, rounded on top and covered with a layer of gravel. Presumably this lower mound was for ceremonial purposes, for under it are found the Indian burials. Covering this inner mound is a mass of earth with steeply sloping sides, like the roof of a house or a long pyramid and over this in turn there is another mass of earth noticeably different from the "pyramid" in color and texture, which gives the outer mound its final rounded shape.

Over this again is a layer of river gravel, thin at the top and thicker at the sides and held in place at the bottom by a wall of large stone slabs. All this great hill of earth was supposedly built, many centuries ago, by Indians whose only way of carrying materials was in baskets on their backs or heads.

Research Students at Work.

The peculiar and puzzling structure of this mound has been disclosed only by the methodical system pursued in opening it. The work is being done under the direction of Dr. H. C. Shetrone of the Ohio State Archeological and Historical society. He has a gang of workmen and dirt-handling machinery at his disposal, in addition to a group of research students to do the more exact work.

Every cubic foot of earth in the mound is being moved. He is cutting off the mound slice by slice, examining everything he finds as he goes. Before snow flies he expects to cut his last slice. Then he will put the mound back into as nearly its original form as is practicable.

To date he has sliced off a little more than half the mound, and has uncovered about 30 Indian burials. Almost all of them are just above ground level, under the inner mound. A few are three or four feet higher. These were important chiefs, judging by the burial gifts found with them, which included great strings of river-mussel pearls in addition to the usual stone, bone and pottery offerings, and ornaments and weapons of copper.

MISSOURI RIVER IS BOON TO POOR

High Water Brings Up Plenty of Firewood.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Although the Missouri river, during periods of high water, is famous for the speed with which it can "eat up" farms and other lands along its course, it is this summer doing an act of kindness for some of the poor people living in towns along that section of the river which passes through South Dakota. These people are being furnished by the big river with an abundance of fuel for next winter, and this, in the form of driftwood, is being retrieved from the swollen waters of the stream and carefully conserved for the time when South Dakota will have freezing temperature next winter.

Old river men along the "Big Muddy" say that not for years has the river brought down so much driftwood as during the present period of high water. The high water is due to the melting of unusually heavy snows in the mountains of Montana, at the head waters of the river.

The Missouri river has this summer inundated much bottomland, has gone through stands of timber on the upper stretches of the stream, and has collected a heavy toll of logs, lumber and brush and other material suitable for firewood. Some of the logs which float near the shore and are drawn to the bank by the watchers along the river are frequently from twenty-five to thirty feet long, and when cut up make a considerable amount of firewood.

When pulled from the river the logs and other material, including tree stumps, are water soaked, but when sawed and split and placed in small piles they soon dry out and make first-class fuel.

Day after day, at the present time, the swollen waters of the river are bringing down logs, gnarled stumps, lumber, railroad ties, and pieces of wood, and as these come near the shore at the various towns along the river they are pulled out and piled up and preserved for the time of need next winter.

TWO BURNED

To Death By Bandits Who Had Taken Them From a Motor Car, Beaten and Locked Them Up.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 20.—After having been dragged from their automobile by bandits, beaten and locked in a house which was set afire, early today, two men died before they could give a coherent story of the attack.

John C. Harrah died soon after he was taken to a hospital. Chester Pugh, his companion, succumbed several hours later.

The Coroner believed the attacks were due to a bootleg feud.

Police said the clothing of the men were saturated with oil.

"The Kid! The Kid!" cried by Harrah before he died, caused police to hold for investigation Michael (Kid) Julian, former pugilist, and Edward (Moses) Gaff. Both denied any knowledge of the murders.

Epworth vicarage, home of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, is about to pass into the hands of the Wesleyan church. It has been an Anglican rectory all these years, as it was in the days when the Wesley brothers, their father, but above all the noble figure of their mother, Suzanne, lived there. It had fallen into dilapidation and the rector appealed for help. Naturally the Methodists came forward and even proposed to buy the historic place. The broad sympathy that has marked inter-Protestant relations, since the Lambeth conference in England was also in evidence at the conferences that led to the purchase. There was a time, not so far distant, when harsh words might have fallen. It will no doubt become a place of grateful pilgrimage to tens of thousands of Wesley's fellow men. But the old ghost that haunted it in John Wesley's youth, that shuffling ghost, jocularly called "old Jeffries," is no longer there.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Better Fertilizers
Cut Expense Bills*Easy to Cut in Half Quantity of Material Handled.

The trend among farmers toward the use of higher-grade fertilizers is bound to result in an appreciable reduction in the cost of growing crops. "For," says A. W. Blair, soil chemist at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, Rutgers university, it is easily possible to cut almost in half the quantity of material to be handled, carted and shipped. This means a big saving in freight bills alone.

Even a moderate increase in the percentage of plant food in a fertilizer makes an important reduction in the amount of inert materials to be hauled. A ton of a 4-8-5 contains 50 pounds of ammonia, 100 pounds of phosphoric acid and 100 pounds of potash, making in all 340 pounds of plant food. The other 1,660 pounds are combining and conditioning materials. On the other hand, 1,000 pounds of a 5-10-6 fertilizer will give 330 pounds of plant food.

A common fertilizer for corn has been one containing food elements in the ratio of 4-8-4 and used at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre. In a 500-pound application there are 20 pounds of ammonia, 40 of phosphoric acid and 20 of potash. Yet the same amount of plant food would be obtained from 400 pounds of a 5-10-5. Thus in fertilizing ten acres the farmer saves the handling of and freight charges on 1,000 pounds of material.

Control Cabbage Worms
by the Use of Poison

Cabbage worms and cabbage aphids usually make their appearance about this season of the year in more or less destructive numbers. Farmers will find a cheap and effective remedy for controlling the pests in the use of lead arsenate and nicotine.

The most effective mixture is one containing 15 parts of powdered lead arsenate to 100 parts of hydrated lime. This is dusted on the plants and does not in any way impair the use of the cabbage for human food, it is said. Repeated doses of the poison dust are necessary during the season, particularly when the heads are forming, if really effective control is to be secured.

Where cabbage aphids are present in any appreciable numbers, it is suggested that 1 per cent nicotine be added to the poison dust. This will rid the plants of the lice at the same time that protection is provided against the ravages of the cabbage worms.

Haul and Spread Manure
on Clover or Grass Sod

Manure loses something of its value every day it is kept. It is never better than the day it is made. Losses that occur in the barnyard may be partly saved if the manure is hauled out at once and spread on a clover or grass sod. There may be some loss from washing or leaching, but most of this will be deposited somewhere in the field. The Ohio station has demonstrated that. It has shown that eight tons of manure hauled fresh from the stable and spread on clover sod in December and January gives a crop increase of $42. An equal amount of manure piled in the barnyard and spread on the sod in April or May gave an increase of $35.

Substituting Silage for Hay Found Satisfactory

A number of agricultural colleges have carried out tests to find out the advisability of substituting silage for hay and the results have been satisfactory. Silage not only is an excellent substitute for hay, but it is more economical to feed it, and there is an increase in the production. It is not possible to tell exactly the amount saved by feeding silage, but it is around 25 per cent on the feed bill. Silage also could be substituted for pasture, and it is profitable to feed it in summer. Where land is high priced, farmers are feeding silage instead of keeping the cows on pasture.

Cutting Millet Hay for General Use of Stock

If the millet hay is for general live stock feeding the crop should be cut just after blooming and before any hard seeds have formed. Millet hay containing seeds has long been held to have an injurious effect on horses. Too much millet hay, cut at any stage, affects horses more than cattle or sheep. The early cut hay, however, is to be preferred for both cattle and sheep.

Millet is cut for hay with a mower the same as any prairie or tame grass hay. The crop usually stands erect and is easy to cut with mower.

Cholera Prevention Is as Essential as Ever

The chances are that we are not going to have cheap corn this fall. The chances are also that hogs will not bring as much money as they did last fall, at the same time we already have a lot of feed in the spring crop of pigs and cholera prevention is just as essential this year as if corn were cheap and hogs brought a higher price. Arrange to have your pigs vaccinated and regard the expense as insurance. Few farmers can afford to carry their own insurance risk. Better be safe now than sorry later on.

Free Lunch for Natives
A street filled with boiling porridge was the sequel to a fire at Johannesburg, South Africa. Firemen poured tons of water on great quantities of crushed oats in a milling establishment. This soon began to boil, burst the walls, and then poured out into the streets like lava. Natives made hearty meals of the product.

STEVENSON'S

BUILD 60,594 MILES OF ROAD
Ten-Year Record Shows Federal Aid Speeds Up Whole Country.

Washington.—Ten years of federal participation in highway building under the provisions of the 1916 federal aid act ended on June 30, last, and in that period about two-thirds of the federal aid system of 171,687 miles were hard surfaced, macadamized, graveled or otherwise improved. Another decade, if the states continue to follow their policy of accepting federal funds and general supervision, will see the system completed.

The vast importance of the system, embracing, as it does, practically all interstate highways, is evidenced by the fact that its arteries reach every city of more than 5,000 inhabitants in the country and if a zone of ten miles were marked off on each side of the roads in the system, that zone would include the homes of 90 per cent of the country's population.

60,594 Miles Built.

On May 31, 1927, the country's investment in highways of the federal aid system, built with government co-operation, reached a total of $1,145,403,031, of which $505,960,673, or about 44 per cent, was contributed by the federal government. To date 60,594 miles of roads in the system have been built jointly by the states and the federal government. Meanwhile, many of the states have gone forward on building programs without waiting for help from the government, and the result is that two-thirds of the system originally contemplated is now completed.

In 1916, when the federal aid act was passed, only 287,047 miles of 3,001,825 miles of road in the country were surfaced. Today the surfaced mileage slightly exceeds 521,915 miles and the construction problem grows increasingly important because the unprecedented increase in the number of motor vehicles, the development of suburbs, and the participation of motor trucks in industry necessitate further extension of roads in width as well as length.

For Mail Service.

Originally, the purpose of congress in establishing the federal aid system of highway construction was to improve highways for the promotion of the rural mail service, but the policy was subsequently expanded to authorize the secretary of agriculture to show preference to projects to "expedite the completion of an adequate and connected system of highways, interstate in character."

The experience during the war in the endeavor to move munitions and materials by highways as well as by the railroad systems brought out forcefully the fact that there had been little unity or system in the work of road building beyond that exercised by private organizations, such as the Lincoln Highway association, the Dixie Highway association, and similar groups.

Discord Arises.

States and counties were responsible for such roads as were built, and discord arose in various communities as to routes—smaller cities and villages in various sections exerting their efforts to have road improvements touch their own localities. The result was that at the beginning of the war few of the principal cities of the country were entirely connected by good roads, passable in all kinds of weather.

Ten States Get More.

In states such as Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, and Wyoming, containing large areas of public domain, including national parks and Indian reservations, the government's percentage of the cost of improvement was fixed at a rate averaging 62.9 per cent for the ten states.

When the act was passed there were still six states which had no highway departments and others whose departments had only nominal authority. The act of 1916 provided that to receive federal aid a state would have to create a highway department having sufficient authority to co-operate with the government, thus providing a stimulus to state control.

The act was amended in 1921 to authorize the designation of a system of main interstate and intercounty highways limited in each state to 7 per cent of the total mileage existing when the act was passed, and many states which had not already done so quickly adopted definite construction programs. Another amendment to the act in 1921 provided that if a state did not maintain roads when built, the federal government would, and the maintenance cost would be deducted from the state's quota.

Table of Authorizations.

Federal aid to the states in building roads will continue until 1930 at least, inasmuch as congress has appropriated or authorized appropriations for the purpose. The following table shows the amount of money authorized by congress from 1917 through the fiscal year 1929:

1917	$ 5,000,000	1924	$65,000,000
1918	10,000,000	1925	75,000,000
1919	65,000,000	1926	75,000,000
1920	95,000,000	1927	75,000,000
1921	100,000,000	1928	75,000,000
1922	75,000,000	1929	75,000,000
1923	50,000,000

In some years more money was spent for federal aid roads than shown for those years in the above table. This apparent discrepancy is explained by the fact that the road-building program moved slowly for the first three years after the passage of the act. Moneys appropriated were held over and the unexpended balances were added to the funds available in later years and were drawn upon as required.

Coolidge Favorable.

The policy of the Coolidge administration has been favorable to carrying out the program authorized, although President Coolidge has indicated in messages to congress that subsidies to the states in general do not have his approval.

The principal federal subsidy to states is that of assistance in road building. In 1924 more than 76 per cent of the total funds turned over to the states from federal revenues were devoted to highway construction. This percentage has increased since 1924, with the decrease of federal aid in certain other directions and the increases in highway expenditures.

The chief arguments in opposition to the federal road aid work has been made by the populous eastern states, which object to being taxed by the federal government for the purpose of building roads or supporting other federal aid activities in the less populous states.

If Things Are Going Wrong, Blame Weather
Fort Worth, Texas.—When things go awry, blame it on the weather, says D. S. Landis, poet, philosopher and for 25 years weather observer here for the United States weather bureau.

Temperature and humidity affect the human nervous system, and fluctuations creating nervous activity are reflected in the actions of people over a large area, he believes.

A bright day cheers, raising the spirits of the people, making everyone more congenial and reducing likelihood of friction.

A cloudy day, on the other hand, while a sedative for people of a phlegmatic type, is an irritant to persons of more vital nature and causes unrest and brittleness of temper, according to Landis. He says that police records show that crime, especially suicides, increases on gloomy days.

Periods of drunkenness, brawls, assaults, murders, arson and the like will be found segregated under abnormal barometric pressures, which, in turn, are the offspring of temperature and absolute humidity, Landis believes.

Although hot weather generally causes crossness and irritation where humidity is great, there are sections in the Southwest where the mercury reaches 120 degrees, and the dry heat becomes actually exhilarating, in Landis' opinion.

"A mean temperature of 70 degrees is the best for normal living conditions with an average amount of moisture," Landis said. "Fluctuations from this cause nervous activity."

"It's not always intuition that causes us to do the things we do. Often it's the weather working on our 'neutral make-up.'"

Bone Placed in Spine, Girl Cripple Can Walk
Chicago.—For the first time in three months' nine-year-old Colletta Beck of 601 North Leamington street, is now able to walk.

During all that period she had lain, all but motionless, in bed. A plaster cast, extending from her hips to her neck, had held her body rigid while a bit of bone that a surgeon had taken from her left leg knitted itself firmly into her spinal column.

About a year ago Colletta's spine was injured by a fall while roller skating and tuberculosis developed in the injured vertebrae.

Late in April Colletta was taken to the Norwegian-American hospital, Dr. Fred Mueller cut out the diseased bone, replaced it with a carefully fitted piece of her left tibia and incased her in the plaster cast.

"She is in fine condition, and, while she took only a few steps, Colletta now can walk as straight as any other child," said her father, Harry J. Beck.

AMUSEMENTS

More than forty acres of ground were occupied by the reproduction of a Canadian frontier village and fort used in filming of "The Flaming Forest" the Cosmopolitan production filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the direction of Reginald Barker, one of the most famous directors of western epics.

The picture, featuring Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree, supported by a cast of more than twenty celebrated players, is now being shown at the Met theater.

The village, which was under construction for more than a month before a camera was cranked, was the largest motion picture set of its kind ever constructed and was a faithful reproduction of a frontier town and stockade of the early seventies before Canada ever made any real attempt to govern the three hundred thousand square miles known as the Northwest territory.

It was at first planned to film the entire production on the Canadian locales described in the famous book by James Oliver Curwood, but this was given up when it was learned that the original locales have been "marred" for picture purposes by the encroachment of civilization.

The set was then built in the mountains of California on a spot which in every way fitted Curwood's description. Following the filming of the village scenes the company of more than five hundred players were taken to Montana and to several additional locations in the California Sierras.

Among the supporting cast of players are Gardner James, borrowed from the Lasky studio; Oscar Beregi borrowed from Universal and Bert Roach and Tom O'Brien, two of M-G-M's featured players.

"Gob" of Uncertain Origin
The derivation of the word "gob," applied to sailors, is uncertain. Some authorities say that it comes from the Chinese; others, that the word was adopted from England. "Gob" in provincial English means a "coast guardsman," probably from the fact that the seamen were accustomed to chew tobacco, since "gob" in English also means a "little lump or piece, or a mouthful."

Goes Back to Old Rome
Vitruvius was an architect of Rome, engaged in the practice of his profession a few years before the beginning of the Christian era. He published the book which bears his name about B. C. 25. Vitruvius mentions that floors of oak were nailed with iron nails. Oak floors today are nailed with steel cut or wire cut nails—through the side tongue—known as blind nailing.

Man and the Book
Now that they are firing Biblical questions at everybody it is noticed that the average man knows, that Daniel was in the lion's den and Noah built the ark. Beyond that he may wobble a bit. Yet the Bible is always the volume of greatest circulation and widest annual placement. It is still the world's best literature.—Los Angeles Times.

AMERICAN MEN

In "Who's Who" Tend To Nordic Type.

The distinguished modern American is blue-eyed, tall and slender, standing 5 feet 9.5 inches in his stockings and weighing 162½ pounds. This is the conclusion drawn, in an article in this week's Liberty, from the physical characteristics of 14,709 distinguished American men, obtained from questionnaires sent out by Liberty to all the men whose names appear in "Who's Who in America." Further characteristics of the distinguished American are:

"In him English blood predominates, strongly mixed with Scotch-Irish, Irish, Scotch, and Welsh, with Germany, the Netherlands, France, Italy, and Spain contributing. In racial type he favors the Nordic, the blond, light-haired, oblong-headed man of the North. The round-headed, brown-haired, brown-eyed, barrel-bodied Alpine and the shorter, swarthy, black-haired, black and volatile Mediterranean also contribute to his makeup.

He stands a third of an inch to a head over other racial and national groups. His average tops the Western Pacific Polynesian (the world's tallest race) by one-third of an inch; the Scotch, the white man's tallest group) by ¾ of an inch; the English by 1 7/8 inches; the Irish by 1 5/8 inches; his own doughboy of the draft by 1 3/5 inches, and the normal undistinguished American by a full three inches."

WEALTH INCREASING

Riches of Nation Said To Demand Adequate Army and Navy.

Figures as to the increase of wealth in this great country come out from time to time, but one of the most important of such presentations has just been compiled by the Wall Street Journal, which has been analyzing the reports of many American concerns for the year ending December 31, 1926.

Cash and investment holdings of 129 corporations that have made public their reports for 1926 total $2,251,365,355, an increase of $292,134,031, compared with the corresponding date of the preceding year. Working capital of the 129 companies totaled $6,068,601,467, an increase of $451,280,746 over the corresponding date of the preceding year.

The United States Steel Corporation heads the list in total cash and security holdings with $317,933,603, a gain of $22,588,651 over the preceding year. Standard Oil of New Jersey comes next with $210,477,186, General Electric third with $147,536,549, and General Motors fourth with $135,398,386. There are eleven companies in the list with aggregate cash and security holdings of close to $1,000,000,000.

Naturally this great wealth is envied by people of other countries which have not been so prosperous. Some of these people would be quite willing to compel the Americans to give up part of their possessions. Force has often been used for purposes of this sort. This is one of the great reasons for maintaining a protective army and navy, adequate to keep our possessions at home and in our own care.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Notorious Name

Recently a newly rich woman was invited to a meeting of the Boston Browning society, on which occasion a number of the poet's verses were read. Evidently they did not intrigue her greatly, for on her way out from the meeting she was heard to say: "Well, if the samples we've been listening to are the best Browning can do in the way of writing poetry, and I had to listen to much of it, I couldn't blame 'Peaches' for leaving him."—Boston Globe.

CONCLAVE

I should attend the conclave of the bees

And agile butterflies if I would know

All of the golden summer secrets

That now elude me and evade me so.

I should be friendly with the dragonflies,

And make the cricket my close intimate;

I should be listening when the hyla cries,

And hark the shrill cicada at my gate.

I should be present where wasps build their nests

Beneath old granary eaves—observe the whir

Of shadowy moths when twilight veils the crests,

And follow the spry vaulting grasshopper.

If I would solve sweet summer secrets

I should attend all conclaves such as these.

Car No. 1—15,000 miles 61.377 M. P. H.—less than 14,664 minutes

Car No. 3—15,000 miles 62.709 M. P. H.—less than 14,353 minutes

Sedan

Three Auburn 8-88 Stock Cars Ran Total of:

42,000 miles in less than 14,664 minutes

Daring and unprecedented. Far in excess of any test ever imposed on stock cars. Not done behind pad locks and timed by factory employees, but publicly, under American Automobile Association sanction and supervision.

We decided to go to extremes never before undertaken by any manufacturer in order to completely, conclusively, and overwhelmingly prove Auburn is a faster, more efficient and more durable stock car.

Through blinding fogs; through down pours of rain, under the hottest sun in years; 28 thousand times around the 1½ mile track on slippery boards; never have men and machines endured such abnormal strains!

Nine drivers, working relays days and night, could not over tax the endurance and speed of the Auburn cars. Old records completely smashed from 5 to 5,000 miles for fully equipped stock cars. New records at every revolution of the wheels from 5,000 to 15,000 miles. The speed was phenomenal . . . 34 new stock car records . . .

But What Of It?

We knew all along that Auburn cars are that fast. But, it is not Auburn's proven speed superiority that is most significant . . . frankly, that was easy and incidental. What IS important is the fine character of car necessary for all three cars to survive such speed.

How's This For Proof?

After one of the roadsters had run the unequalled distance of ten thousand gruelling miles, in less than 9,479 minutes at an average speed of over 63 miles per hour, it was taken off the track, thoroughly checked—necessary replacements made—tuned and greased.

Then, for 1,000 miles more, this same car spurred forward at over 72 miles per hour. That proves reserve power, speed and endurance unknown in motor cars until now.

Another Thriller

After 2,637 miles, the Sedan running at about

70 miles an hour speed, turned over on the wet track, during a rainstorm in the middle of the night, slid on its top with all four wheels in the air, for about 50 feet, righted itself and then crashed into the railing. Two doors and three fenders were torn off, radiator and windshield smashed. Seven hours were spent for photographs, radiator and other body repairs and the car went back on the track. It caught up with the other cars, and finished the 15,000 miles at over 62 miles per hour speed. That proves the strong construction, and endurance of Auburn cars, although because in the accident, it lost three fenders and two doors, its entire distance cannot be counted as an official A.A.A. record, but it was officially timed by the A.A.A.

Triple Proof

It would have been perfectly startling if one car had broken all these records, but three Auburn cars were in this test—and all three of them did honor to the name of Auburn.

STATE FAIR RODEO ATTRACTS CHAMPS

Cowboys and Cattle Arriving Daily at Grounds at Columbus

Entries in the International Stampede and Rodeo which will be held in Columbus during the Ohio State Fair, from August 26 to September 5, have come in at such a rate that this rodeo promises to have the largest number of cowboys that have entered at any stampede in the East.

Already fifty cowboys, including several from the Caribou Hills of British Columbia, have arrived in Columbus from Vancouver, B. C., to compete for the $20,000 offered in prizes.

Practically all of the rodeo stars who won their right to the title of pion bulldogger. Mike Stewart, who was judged the best all-round cowboy and who received the silver loving cup for the champion of the world in bronk riding in May, will again be in Columbus.

Less than a week ago, word was flashed through on the press wires that Mabel Strickland had entered and won another cowgirl contest, and simultaneously with this report came word that she was coming to Columbus to take part in the Rodeo. She and her equally famous husband, J. Hugh Strickland, are westerners by birth and are two of the best known riders and cowboys in the world. Mabel Strickland is the only woman who can rope and tie a steer in record time. In addition she is proficient as a bucking horse rider, trick and fancy roping and trick and fancy rider.

CHAMPION STEER RIDER OF VANCOUVER

"Champion" at Chicago, New York, in the Pendleton, Oregon, match Cheyenne and Pendleton last year, also at the great Wembley Rodeo of 1924, will be on the list of contestants at the Columbus Stampede, according to George Hamilton, Rodeo Secretary.

Chief among these champions is Cheyenne Kizer, who has been at the Vancouver Stampede and Rodeo the past week. This will make his second visit in Columbus, for he competed in the Rodeo held there in May under the auspices of the Columbus' Gallery of Fine Arts, and won the title of the world's cham-

TELEGRAM ENDORSES STAMPEDE AT VANCOUVER

"Directors of Vancouver Exhibition Association consisting of thirty-three most prominent business men of this city consider stampede and rodeo staged by Peter Welsh here tonight before fifteen thousand people best ever staged at any part of Canada. Personally have seen stampede for twenty years. Heartily endorse these opinions. This testimonial to show is entirely voluntary and I shall be glad to give any further information desired. Prime Minister and other high dignitaries were present."

(Signed) John K. Matheson, General Manager.

And when this same outfit gets under way at the Ohio State Fair August 26 to September 5, the boys will be fresh from their efforts at the Pacific Exposition, at Vancouver, B. C., Canada. They will come to Columbus with new records to defend, or break.

Kirman Accompanied by Faithful 19-Year Old Pony

What is probably the finest collection of Rodeo horses in the world in the game today will be seen at the 1927 Ohio State Fair, August 26th to September 5th, when Peter Welsh brings his Stampede and Rodeo outfit for a nine day showing.

Among the horses, the most famous, although certainly not the most active, will be Rubio, the 19-year old Sorrel pony owned by Tommy Kirman, Champion trick roping and rider. Rubio, a present to Kirman from the former president of Argentina, is certainly the best travelled horses in the outfit. From 1901 to 1916 he toured Canada and the United States with the 101 Wild West Show, covering more than 50,000 miles. Rubio went to the Wembley Rodeo in England with Kirman. When Kirman goes, he takes the faithful Rubio with him, and the old horse can still show the young ones a thing or two.

Significance in Rodeo Ponies' Names

What's in a name? That question has been asked innumerable times on every conceivable occasion. The names of some of the most famous of the bucking broncos to be used in the Ohio State Fair International Stampede and Rodeo gives some slight indication of the temperament of their owners. Here are some of the names: Tumbleweed, Gravedigger, Rattlesnake, Bomber, Powderface, Yellow Fever, Red Roan, Wildcat, Weasel, Coyote, Skyrocket, Midnight, Sage Queen, and Volcano.

The rodeo stock already shipped to Columbus, comprises 300 head of horses, 50 calves, 50 range cows, 50 black bucking steers and 50 Brahma steers, the property of the Alberta, Stamrod, Ltd.

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW IS UPHELD

SACCO, VANZETTI, MADEIROS, ANARCHISTS, PAY PENALTY

For the Murder of the Paymaster At South Bainbridge, Mass., Seven Years Ago—The Murderers and Their Friends Pulled Every Wire and Used All the Influence At Their Command To Stave Off the Execution—World Wide Interest In the Condemned Men Who Were Executed Monday at Midnight.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti shortly after midnight paid the penalty of death exacted by the state for murder at Charlestown, Massachusetts, state prison.

Celestino Madeiros preceded them to the electric chair by a few minutes, the world-known radicals following as rapidly as the execution routine would permit.

Madeiros died at 12:09 a. m., for the murder of Wrentham bank cashier. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed for the murder of a paymaster and his guard at Braintree more than seven years ago. Sacco was dead at 12:19 and Vanzetti at 12:26 a. m.

Inside and outside of the high prison wall stood a small army of armed guards. Waiting also were the press wires to inform the world that the long fight to save the men was at an end.

The fight in behalf of the men continued until the last minute.

Both Sacco and Vanzetti made brief speeches in the death chamber, before they took their seats in the chair, Vanzetti protesting his innocence to the last.

Sacco, pale but steady, shouted in Italian: "Long live anarchy," as he sat down in the chair.

Then in broken English he went on: "Farewell my wife and child and all my friends."

The straps were being adjusted as he said his last words: "Good evening, gentlemen! Farewell, mother!"

Vanzetti entered the death chamber the calmest of all the three men. Shaking hands with two of the guards as he came thru the door of the execution chamber, he walked unassisted to the chair and seated himself.

As the guards began the hasty adjustment of straps to his head and body he began a speech.

In the much broken English that characterized his dramatic plea for "justice" when sentence was passed on him in Dedham on April 9, he declared:

"I wish to tell you I am innocent and never connected with any crime, but sometimes some sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime, not only of this one but all. I am an innocent man."

Then, just as the guards slipped the straps and head cap in place, cutting off further speech, he shouted: "I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."

A moment after the official witnesses entered the death chamber Madeiros was led in between two guards. The youth, who had won five respites because of his confession that a gang with which he was connected committed the South Braintree murders, was stolid and expressionless.

His eyes wandered about the little group of witnesses as he was strapped to the chair, but he said nothing.

Madeiros came in at 12:02:47. At 12:03:37 the shock was applied. He was pronounced dead at 12:09:35.

Then came Sacco. Apart from the prison pallor the little shoe worker who had become an international figure showed no sign of his long hunger strike. He walked erect between the guards, his eyes flashing brighter about the group in the death chamber as he came.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were convicted of the murder of a paymaster and his guard in a hold-up in South Braintree on April 15, 1920.

Both were known to department of justice operatives because of radical activities. Before trial of the South Braintree holdup Vanzetti was convicted of a robbery while armed.

The state's case in the South Braintree matter rested on identification by witnesses; the fact that both men were heavily armed when arrested, Sacco with a revolver claimed to be that carried by the slain guard; a cap identified as Sacco's found on murder scene, and various other circumstantial evidence.

The defense contended the men were armed because they feared deportation as radicals; produced witnesses to contradict identification, and charged collusion between federal and state officials, persecution for political ideas and prejudice on the part of trial justice and jury foreman.

Sacco worked in a shoe factory in Stoughton. Vanzetti was a fish peddler in Plymouth.

The monastery was damaged to the extent of $10,000 and windows in houses for blocks around were shattered. Residents were thrown from their beds.

Middletown—Evidence gathered by police today gives rise to the theory that Clem Miller, 38, found dead on the Dixie highway near here late Sunday was struck by three autos, following a fight between his brother, Joseph Miller, and Robert Wilkerson of Trenton, at a camp where they had been drinking.

Troy—The first arrests in airplane thievery were reported to police today by Detroit authorities. J. W. Atherton, of Oklahoma, and Ed. Hull of Stillwater, Oregon, are being held on suspicion in that city for the theft of an airplane from an airport here several days ago.

SELECTION OF SEED CORN IS SO IMPORTANT

Proper Care Now Insures a Good Start For Best Results For Corn in 1928.

With corn prospects indicating the production of one-fourth less corn in Ohio this year, then, was produced last year, Pickaway county farmers can well afford to give the selection and storing of seed corn some attention. Stalk selection is the best method of seed corn selection since one can get the history of conditions under which each ear was produced. It takes 16 to 18 ears of corn to furnish seed for an acre. It pays to select twice this amount at the time of selection to provide for culling undesirable corn after it has dried out. Seed corn should be husked and racked on the drier as soon as secured.

Avoid selecting ears from prematurely ripe stalks. Discard ears showing evidence of disease. Place the ears on the drier so that they do not touch each other to avoid the development of harmful molds, etc. A little planning now and preparation for seed corn is our best assurance of a satisfactory start on the 1928 corn crop.

Among those present from this city were Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. Will Ragland, Mrs. Felix Freyer, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Lloyd Seward, Mrs. Edward Locker, Mrs. Daniel Smith, Mrs. Allen Whittington, Miss Oliver Johnson and Mrs. Irene Redman.

CORN BORER MARCHES SOUTH.

The recent reports of the federal field scouts show that European corn borer has been discovered in Franklin, Union, Shelby, Delaware, Harrison and Jefferson counties.

This means that the corn borer is just across the border from the Pickaway plains. No official infestation or the corn borer has yet been discovered in Pickaway county however. These facts indicate the problem which will soon confront the Pickaway corn grower. Clean harvesting low cutting, destruction of standing stalks after harvest will aid materially in keeping this enemy in check.

CITIZENS AND ELECTIONS

Only persons sufficiently interested in elections to go voluntarily to the polls ought to vote, in the opinion of Prof. W. B. Munroe, of Harvard University, President of the American Political Science Association. "The man who has to be routed out on election day contributes nothing to government," he says. Well, possibly. Only the trouble is that so many of those interested enough to go voluntarily to the polls are people who want something for themselves—jobs, contracts, immunity to violate the law in various ways, and such. Wind, weather and high water can't keep them from voting. But citizens who simply have a disinterested concern in good government often won't take the trouble to go to the polls unless they are prodded. The individual who is busy, or who is in a hurry to get home, is apt to excuse himself on the ground that his vote won't be missed. President Munroe's plan might work in a college. It is hardly suited to this rude, rough world of city elections—unless government is to be turned over entirely to "the boys."—Kansas City Times.

Tarts Are Delights For Children; Cobblers Easiest of All Baked Desserts

"The Queen of Hearts She made some tarts All on a summer's day; The Knave of Hearts He stole those tarts, And took them clean away." Mother Goose Rhyme.

The tart is the forerunner of America's favorite dessert,—the fruit pie. It was popular in England long before America was colonized. Tarts are really open face pies in miniature. They are the delight of children, who, in the tart, have a whole pie all to themselves. Grown-ups are also fond of them.

They are excellent ways in which to use left-over pie crust with fruit or berries. Jelly centers are frequently used and few foods have a more attractive appearance than the tart with the bright red jelly center.

In the cobbler, we have the baked dessert which is easiest of all to make. We are now entering upon the season when fruits and berries are most plentiful. Of course, we all love them raw, but, nevertheless, we sometimes tire of them in this condition, and the cobbler is an ideal way in which to serve them cooked. There are few more alluring desserts than a fruit or berry cobbler when served with a delicate sauce.

In the following recipes, evaporated milk is recommended because the tempting appearance of both the tart and the cobbler is greatly improved by the delicate brown which results when it is used.

Plain Pastry for Tarts

2 cups pastry flour 1/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup cold fat 1/4 cup evaporated milk
1 tsp. salt

Sift flour with the salt. Rub fat in with tips of fingers until the appearance is that of coarse corn meal. Add enough liquid to mix lightly to a medium stiff dough. When rolling out use as little hard wheat flour as possible to dust the board. Roll lightly. Bake at 425 to 450° F. Yield: Sufficient for 12 tart shells.

Fill tarts with sweetened slightly cooked blueberries or raspberries and top with whipped cream sauce.

Whipped Cream Sauce

1 cup whipping cream 1/4 cup evaporated milk
1/4 cup sugar

Chill cream and evaporated milk and whip until stiff. Fold in sugar and keep chilled until ready to serve.

Peach Cobbler

2 cups pastry flour 4 tbsp. evaporated milk diluted with
4 tsp. baking powder 1/2 cup water
1 tsp. salt 8 large peaches
5 tbsp. fat 1 cup sugar
1 tsp. butter 1 tbsp. water

Sift flour with baking powder and salt twice. Rub fat into flour with fingers until appearance is like coarse corn meal. Add liquid to dry ingredients and mix quickly but thoroughly. Toss dough onto board dusted with bread flour. Pat or roll out to 1/4-inch thickness. Have peaches pared and cut into 1/4-inch slices. Place peaches in a buttered pan that is deep enough to hold them. Sprinkle with sugar, add butter in bits and then the water. Cover with dough. Clash top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a 400° F. oven. About 25 minutes are required for baking. Yield: 8 servings.

Cherry Roll

2 cups bread flour 1/4 cup evaporated milk diluted with
4 tsp. baking powder 1/2 cup water
1/2 tsp. salt 1 pint red cherries
2 tbsp. sugar 1 cup sugar
5 tbsp. fat

Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, salt, and 2 tablespoons sugar. Rub the fat in with the fingers and add diluted milk as for biscuit dough. Toss on a slightly floured board and knead for a minute. Roll in a rectangular shape to 1/4-inch thickness. Sprinkle over generously with well sugared, pitted cherries and roll up like a jelly roll. Place in a greased tin. Slash diagonally across top and bake in a medium oven. Serve with sweetened cherry sauce. Serves six.

METZGAR FAMILY REUNION

Another family reunion which has been an annual event for the past nine years was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Metzgar, in Williamsport, when 56 descendants of the late Henry Metzgar gathered there.

Men of Proved Nerve Scared by Microphone

Prince William of Sweden is a renowned animal hunter, who stands 6 feet 6 inches in his stocking feet, but, from an incident which has just become known, he was completely cowed by the microphone. It was apparently a premonition on his part that he was to have an unusual experience. At any rate, as he walked into the deadened studio and the broadcasting was just about to begin, he mopped his brow and exclaimed in an agonized tone: "This is terrible!"

As related by M. H. Aylesworth, Berlenbach, who fought young Stribling in the roped arena, suffered an even worse experience. Berlenbach was to give a five-minute talk on "Bravery in the Prize Ring," but became so terrified that he strode out of the studio, never to return.

FIND INDIAN GRAVES UNDER LARGE MOUND

Archeologists Study Burial Pyramid in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio.—A large Indian mound near Bainbridge, Ohio, is being sliced like a loaf of bread by exploring archeologists, who have found 30 Indian burials and a complicated internal structure.

What appears to be an elongate earthen pyramid is buried under the external surface of the so-called Selp mound. Seen from the outside the mound looked merely like a great rounded heap of earth, 240 feet long, 150 feet wide and 30 feet high.

Covers Indian Burials.
The basis of the mound is a lower mound, shorter and narrower than the covering structure, rounded on top and covered with a layer of gravel. Presumably this lower mound was for ceremonial purposes, for under it are found the Indian burials. Covering this inner mound is a mass of earth with steeply sloping sides, like the roof of a house or a long pyramid and over this in turn there is another mass of earth noticeably different from the "pyramid" in color and texture, which gives the outer mound its final rounded shape.

Over this again is a layer of river gravel, thin at the top and thicker at the sides and held in place at the bottom by a wall of large stone slabs. All this, great hill of earth was tolls built, many centuries ago, by Indians whose only way of carrying materials was in baskets on their backs or heads.

Research Students at Work.
The peculiar and puzzling structure of this mound has been disclosed only by the methodical system pursued in opening it. The work is being done under the direction of Dr. H. C. Shetrone of the Ohio State Archeological and Historical society. He has a gang of workmen and dirt-handling machinery at his disposal, in addition to a group of research students to do the more exact work.

Every cubic foot of earth in the mound is being moved. He is cutting off the mound slice by slice, examining everything he finds as he goes. Before snow flies he expects to cut his last slice. Then he will put the mound back into as nearly its original form as is practicable.

To date he has sliced off a little more than half the mound, and has uncovered about 30 Indian burials. Almost all of them are just above ground level, under the inner mound. A few are three or four feet higher. These were important chiefs, judging by the burial gifts found with them, which included great strings of river-mussel pearls in addition to the usual stone, bone and pottery offerings, and ornaments and weapons of copper.

MISSOURI RIVER IS BOON TO POOR

High Water Brings Up Plenty of Firewood.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Although the Missouri river, during periods of high water, is famous for the speed with which it can "eat up" farms and other lands along its course, it is this summer doing an act of kindness for some of the poor people living in towns along that section of the river which passes through South Dakota.

These people are being furnished by the big river with an abundance of fuel for next winter, and this, in the form of driftwood, is being retrieved from the swollen waters of the stream and carefully conserved for the time when South Dakota will have freezing temperature next winter.

Old river men along the "Big Muddy" say that not for years has the river brought down so much driftwood as during the present period of high water. The high water is due to the melting of unusually heavy snows in the mountains of Montana, at the head waters of the river.

The Missouri river has this summer inundated much bottomland, has gone through stands of timber on the upper stretches of the stream, and has collected a heavy toll of logs, lumber and brush and other material suitable for firewood. Some of the logs which float near the shore and are drawn to the bank by the watchers along the river are frequently from twenty-five to thirty feet long, and when cut up make a considerable amount of firewood.

When pulled from the river the logs and other material, including tree stumps, are water soaked, but when sawed and split and placed in small piles they soon dry out and make first-class fuel.

Day after day, at the present time, the swollen waters of the river are bringing down logs, gnarled stumps, lumber, railroad ties, and pieces of wood, and as these come near the shore at the various towns along the river they are pulled out and piled up and preserved for the time of need next winter.

TWO BURNED

To Death By Bandits Who Had Taken Them From a Motor Car, Beaten and Locked Them Up.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 20.—After having been dragged from their automobile by bandits, beaten and locked in a house which was set afire, early today, two men died before they could give a coherent story of the attack.

John C. Harrah died soon after he was taken to a hospital. Chester Pugh, his companion, succumbed several hours later.

The Coroner believed the attacks were due to a bootleg feud. Police said the clothing of the men were saturated with oil.

"The Kid! The Kid!" cried by Harrah before he died, caused police to hold for investigation Michael (Kid) Julian, former pugilist, and Edward (Moses) Gaff. Both denied any knowledge of the murders.

Epworth vicarage, home of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, is about to pass into the hands of the Wesleyan church. It has been an Anglican rectory all these years, as it was in the days when the Wesley brothers, their father, but above all the noble figure of their mother, Suzanne, lived there. It had fallen into dilapidation and the rector appealed for help. Naturally the Methodists came forward and even proposed to buy the historic place. The broad sympathy that has marked inter-Protestant relations, since the Lambeth conference in England was also in evidence at the conferences that led to the purchase. There was a time, not so far distant, when harsh words might have fallen. It will no doubt become a place of grateful pilgrimage to tens of thousands of Wesley's fellow men. But the old ghost that haunted it in John Wesley's youth, that shuffling ghost, jocularly called "old Jeffries," is no longer there.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Better Fertilizers
Cut Expense BillsEasy to Cut in Half Quantity of Material Handled.

The trend among farmers toward the use of higher-grade fertilizers is bound to result in an appreciable reduction in the cost of growing crops. "For," says A. W. Blair, soil chemist at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, Rutgers university, it is easily possible to cut almost in half the quantity of material to be handled, carted and shipped. This means a big saving in freight bills alone.

Even a moderate increase in the percentage of plant food in a fertilizer makes an important reduction in the amount of inert materials to be hauled. A ton of a 4-8-5 contains 50 pounds of ammonia, 100 pounds of phosphoric acid and 100 pounds of potash, making in all 340 pounds of plant food. The other 1,660 pounds are combining and conditioning materials. On the other hand, 1,000 pounds of a 5-10-5 fertilizer will give 330 pounds of plant food.

A common fertilizer for corn has been one containing food elements in the ratio of 4-8-4 and used at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre. In a 500-pound application there are 20 pounds of ammonia, 40 of phosphoric acid and 20 of potash. Yet the same amount of plant food would be obtained from 400 pounds of a 5-10-5. Thus in fertilizing ten acres the farmer saves the handling of and freight charges on 1,000 pounds of material.

Control Cabbage Worms
by the Use of Poison

Cabbage worms and cabbage aphids usually make their appearance about this season of the year in more or less destructive numbers. Farmers will find a cheap and effective remedy for controlling the pests in the use of lead arsenate and nicotine.

The most effective mixture is one containing 15 parts of powdered lead arsenate to 100 parts of hydrated lime. This is dusted on the plants and does not in any way impair the use of the cabbage for human food, it is said.

Repeated doses of the poison dust are necessary during the season, particularly when the heads are forming. If really effective control is to be secured.

Where cabbage aphids are present in any appreciable numbers, it is suggested that 1 per cent nicotine be added to the poison dust. This will rid the plants of the lice at the same time that protection is provided against the ravages of the cabbage worms.

Haul and Spread Manure
on Clover or Grass Sod

Manure loses something of its value every day it is kept. It is never better than the day it is made. Losses that occur in the barnyard may be partly saved if the manure is hauled out at once and spread on a clover or grass sod. There may be some loss from washing or leaching, but most of this will be deposited somewhere in the field. The Ohio station has demonstrated that. It has shown that eight tons of manure hauled fresh from the stable and spread on clover sod in December and January gives a crop increase of $42. An equal amount of manure piled in the barnyard and spread on the sod in April or May gave an increase of $35.

Hay Found Satisfactory

A number of agricultural colleges have carried out tests to find out the advisability of substituting silage for hay and the results have been satisfactory. Silage not only is an excellent substitute for hay, but it is more economical to feed it, and there is an increase in the production. It is not possible to tell exactly the amount saved by feeding silage, but it is around 25 per cent on the feed bill.

Silage also could be substituted for pasture, and it is profitable to feed it in summer. Where land is high priced, farmers are feeding silage instead of keeping the cows on pasture.

Cutting Millet Hay for General Use of Stock

If the millet hay is for general live stock feeding the crop should be cut just after blooming and before any hard seeds have formed. Millet hay containing seeds has long been held to have an injurious effect on horses. Too much millet hay, cut at any stage, affects horses more than cattle or sheep. The early cut hay, however, is to be preferred for both cattle and sheep.

Millet is cut for hay with a mower the same as any prairie or tame grass hay. The crop usually stands erect and is easy to cut with mowder.

Cholera Prevention Is
as Essential as Ever

The chances are that we are not going to have cheap corn this fall. The chances are also that hogs will not bring as much money as they did last fall, at the same time we already have a lot of feed in the spring crop of pigs and cholera prevention is just as essential this year as if corn were cheap and hogs brought a higher price. Arrange to have your pigs vaccinated and regard the expense as insurance. Few farmers can afford to carry their own insurance risk. Better be safe now than sorry later on.

REOPENING OF GYM FOR JITNEY DANCES.

Paul Kleinke and his Rythmats will feature the reopening of the Saturday night jitney dances at the C. A. C. Dance Pavilion August 27, after a month of idleness.

This will mark the first appearance of the ever popular orchestra in or near Circleville since their stay here for the annual Pumpkin Show dances last October and the music and dance lovers of Circleville will appreciate their return.

The local management is fortunate in obtaining the services of this Dayton band as they are only in this vicinity for a brief stay after which they will resume their tour of the middle west. This tour was started immediately after their last engagement in this city and will be resumed again after their appearance here.

The Rythmats have always been popular with the local music and dance lovers and our noted as having a real hot orchestra. Kleinke has promised a vastly improved band over his one of last year as they have reorganized since their last appearance here and everyone can feel certain that it will be good as he has always been noted for real bands.

The management hopes to make this a real dance as it will be the last chance for many of the younger set to mingle before the beginning of the fall term of school when many will leave. The doors will open promptly at 8 o'clock and dancing will start shortly afterward. Dancing will be conducted on the popular park plan basis.

They Stick You

Alexander Kerensky, one time Russian President, said at a dinner in Philadelphia:

"The bolsheviks conspire in every country, they plot against every government, and if you utter a word of disapproval—dear me, how their feelings are hurt! As sure as death they'll bomb you if they get a chance." "Nevertheless," declared a rich radical or pink, "the bolsheviks, you must remember, have their good points." "Yes," said M. Kerensky savagely, "the same as a porcupine has his."

Free Lunch for Natives

A street filled with boiling porridge was the sequel to a fire at Johannesburg, South Africa. Firemen poured tons of water on great quantities of crushed oats in a milling establishment. This soon began to boil, burst the walls, and then poured out into the streets like lava. Natives made hearty meals of the product.

BUILD 60,594
MILES OF ROAD

Ten-Year Record Shows
Federal Aid Speeds Up
Whole Country.

Washington.—Ten years of federal participation in highway building under the provisions of the 1916 federal aid act ended on June 30, last, and in that period about two-thirds of the federal aid system of 171,687 miles were hard surfaced, macadamized, graveled or otherwise improved. Another decade, if the states continue to follow their policy of accepting federal funds and general supervision, will see the system completed.

The vast importance of the system, embracing as it does, practically all interstate highways, is evidenced by the fact that its arteries reach every city of more than 5,000 inhabitants in the country and if a zone of ten miles were marked off on each side of the roads in the system, that zone would include the homes of 90 per cent of the country's population.

60,594 Miles Built.
On May 31, 1927, the country's investment in highways of the federal aid system, built with government co-operation, reached a total of $1,145,403,031, of which $505,960,673, or about 44 per cent, was contributed by the federal government. To date 60,594 miles of roads in the system have been built jointly by the states and the federal government. Meanwhile, many of the states have gone forward on building programs without waiting for help from the government, and the result is that two-thirds of the system originally contemplated is now completed.

In 1916, when the federal aid act was passed, only 287,047 miles of 3,001,825 miles of road in the country were surfaced. Today the surfaced mileage slightly exceeds 521,915 miles and the construction problem grows increasingly important because the unprecedented increase in the number of motor vehicles, the development of suburbs, and the participation of motor trucks in industry necessitate further extension of roads in width as well as length.

For Mail Service.
Originally, the purpose of congress in establishing the federal aid system of highway construction was to improve highways for the promotion of the rural mail service, but the policy was subsequently expanded to authorize the secretary of agriculture to show preference to projects to "expedite the completion of an adequate and connected system of highways, interstate in character."

The experience during the war in the endeavor to move munitions and materials by highways as well as by the railroad systems brought out forcefully the fact that there had been little unity or system in the work of road building beyond that exercised by private organizations, such as the Lincoln Highway association, the Dixie Highway association, and similar groups.

Discord Arises.
States and counties were responsible for such roads as were built, and discord arose in various communities as to routes—smaller cities and villages in various sections exerting their efforts to have road improvements touch their own localities. The result was that at the beginning of the war few of the principal cities of the country were entirely connected by good roads, passable in all kinds of weather.

Under the 1916 federal aid road act the old office of road inquiry, created in 1893 to study highway conditions, was converted into the bureau of public roads, and was given the task of supervising federal aid road building. The act authorized the secretary of agriculture to help states with their programs of improving post roads up to 50 per cent of the cost of the improvement, providing that the cost did not exceed $10,000 a mile, exclusive of bridges more than 20 feet long.

Ten States Get More.
In states such as Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, and Wyoming, containing large areas of public domain, including national parks and Indian reservations, the government's percentage of the cost of improvement was fixed at a rate averaging 62.9 per cent for the ten states.

When the act was passed there were still six states which had no highway departments and others whose departments had only nominal authority. The act of 1916 provided that to receive federal aid a state would have to create a highway department having sufficient authority to co-operate with the government, thus providing a stimulus to state control.

The act was amended in 1921 to authorize the designation of a system of main interstate and intercounty highways limited in each state to 7 per cent of the total mileage existing when the act was passed, and many states which had not already done so quickly adopted definite construction programs. Another amendment to the act in 1921 provided that if a state did not maintain roads when built, the federal government would, and the maintenance cost would be deducted from the state's quota.

Table of Authorizations.
Federal aid to the states in building roads will continue until 1930 at least, inasmuch as congress has appropriated or authorized appropriations for the purpose. The following table shows the amount of money authorized by congress from 1917 through the fiscal year 1923:

1917	$ 5,000,000	1924	$65,000,000
1918	10,000,000	1925	75,000,000
1919	65,000,000	1926	75,000,000
1920	95,000,000	1927	75,000,000
1921	100,000,000	1928	75,000,000
1922	75,000,000	1929	75,000,000
1923	50,000,000

In some years more money was spent for federal aid roads than shown for those years in the above table. This apparent discrepancy is explained by the fact that the road-building program moved slowly for the first three years after the passage of the act. Moneys appropriated were held over and the unexpended balances were added to the funds available in later years and were drawn upon as required.

Coolidge Favorable.

The policy of the Coolidge administration has been favorable to carrying out the program authorized, although President Coolidge has indicated in messages to congress that subsidies to the states in general do not have his approval.

The principal federal subsidy to states is that of assistance in road building. In 1924 more than 76 per cent of the total funds turned over to the states from federal revenues were devoted to highway construction. This percentage has increased since 1924, with the decrease of federal aid in certain other directions and the increases in highway expenditures.

The chief arguments in opposition to the federal road aid work has been made by the populous eastern states, which object to being taxed by the federal government for the purpose of building roads or supporting other federal aid activities in the less populous states.

If Things Are Going

Wrong, Blame Weather

Fort Worth, Texas.—When things go awry, blame it on the weather, says D. S. Landis, poet, philosopher and for 25 years weather observer here for the United States weather bureau.

Temperature and humidity affect the human nervous system, and fluctuations creating nervous activity are reflected in the actions of people over a large area, he believes.

A bright day cheers, raising the spirits of the people, making everyone more congenial and reducing likelihood of friction.

A cloudy day, on the other hand, while a sedative for people of a phlegmatic type, is an irritant to persons of more vital nature and causes unrest and brittleness of temper, according to Landis. He says that police records show that crime, especially suicides, increases on gloomy days.

Periods of drunkenness, brawls, assaults, murders, arson and the like will be found segregated under abnormal barometric pressures, which, in turn, are the offspring of temperature and absolute humidity, Landis believes.

Although hot weather generally causes crossness and irritation where humidity is great, there are sections in the Southwest where the mercury reaches 120 degrees, and the dry heat becomes actually exhilarating, in Landis' opinion.

"A mean temperature of 70 degrees is the best for normal living conditions with an average amount of moisture," Landis said. "Fluctuations from this cause nervous activity."

"It's not always intuition that causes us to do the things we do. Often it's the weather working on our neutral make-up."

Bone Placed in Spine,
Girl Cripple Can Walk

Chicago.—For the first time in three months* nine-year-old Colletta Beck of 601 North Leamington street, is now able to walk.

During all that period she had lain, all but motionless, in bed. A plaster cast, extending from her hips to her neck, had held her body rigid while a bit of bone that a surgeon had taken from her left leg knitted itself firmly into her spinal column.

About a year ago Colletta's spine was injured by a fall while roller skating and tuberculosis developed in the injured vertebrae.

Late in April Colletta was taken to the Norwegian-American hospital. Dr. Fred Mueller cut out the diseased bone, replaced it with a carefully fitted piece of her left tibia and incased her in the plaster cast.

"She is in fine condition, and, while she took only a few steps, Colletta now can walk as straight as any other child," said her father, Harry J. Beck.

This Dixie Baby Has
25 Toes, 18 Fingers

Charlotte, N. C.—Twenty-five toes and eighteen fingers were in possession of a three-year-old colored baby who was registered at the orthopedic clinic at the city health department.

The child, Betty Burton, daughter of G. M. Burton of Cornelius, was brought to the clinic by her mother, who was informed by the attending surgeon that the superabundance of fingers and toes could easily be removed and the child made normal.

The hands and feet of the little pickaninny were fearfully cluttered with the extra protuberances. The legs were small and weak, and the mother said the child could not walk alone.

AMUSEMENTS

More than forty acres of ground were occupied by the reproduction of a Canadian frontier village and fort used in filming of "The Flaming Forest" the Cosmopolitan production filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the direction of Reginald Barker, one of the most famous directors of western epics.

The picture, featuring Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree, supported by a cast of more than twenty celebrated players, is now being shown at the Met theater.

The village, which was under construction for more than a month before a camera was cranked, was the largest motion picture set of its kind ever constructed and was a faithful reproduction of a frontier town and stockade of the early seventies before Canada ever made any real attempt to govern the three hundred thousand square miles known as the Northwest territory.

It was at first planned to film the entire production on the Canadian locales described in the famous book by James Oliver Curwood, but this was given up when it was learned that the original locales have been "marred" for picture purposes by the encroachment of civilization.

The set was then built in the mountains of California on a spot which in every way fitted Curwood's description. Following the filming of the village scenes the company of more than five hundred players were taken to Montana and to several additional locations in the California Sierras.

Among the supporting cast of players are Gardner James, borrowed from the Lasky studio; Oscar Beregi borrowed from Universal and Bert Roach and Tom O'Brien, two of M-G-M's featured players.

"Gob" of Uncertain Origin

The derivation of the word "gob," applied to sailors, is uncertain. Some authorities say that it comes from the Chinese; others, that the word was adopted from England. "Gob" in provincial English means a "coast guardsman," probably from the fact that the seamen were accustomed to chew tobacco, since "gob" in English also means a "little lump or piece, or a mouthful."

Vitruvius was an architect of Rome, engaged in the practice of his profession a few years before the beginning of the Christian era. He published the book which bears his name about B. C. 25. Vitruvius mentions that floors of oak were nailed with iron nails. Oak floors today are nailed with steel cut or wire cut nails—through the side tongue—known as blind nailing.

STEVENSON'S

AMERICAN MEN

In "Who's Who" Tend To Nordic Type.

The distinguished modern American is blue-eyed, tall and slender, standing 5 feet 9.5 inches in his stockings and weighing 162½ pounds. This is the conclusion drawn, in an article in this week's Liberty, from the physical characteristics of 14,709 distinguished American men, obtained from questionnaires sent out by Liberty to all the men whose names appear in "Who's Who in America." Further characteristics of the distinguished American are:

"In him English blood predominates, strongly mixed with Scotch-Irish, Irish, Scotch, and Welsh, with Germany, the Netherlands, France, Italy, and Spain contributing. In racial type he favors the Nordic, the blond, light-haired, oblong-headed man of the North. The round-headed, brown-haired, brown-eyed, barrel-bodied Alpine and the shorter, swarthy, black-haired, black and volatile Mediterranean also contribute to his makeup.

He stands a third of an inch to a head over other racial and national groups. His average tops the Western Pacific Polynesian (the world's tallest race) by one-third of an inch; the Scotch, the white man's tallest group, by ¾ of an inch; the English by 1 ½ inches; the Irish by 1 ½ inches; his own doughboy of the draft by 1 3-5 inches, and the normal undistinguished American by a full three inches."

WEALTH INCREASING

Riches of Nation Said To Demand Adequate Army and Navy.

Figures as to the increase of wealth in this great country come out from time to time, but one of the most important of such presentations has just been compiled by the Wall Street Journal, which has been analyzing the reports of many American concerns for the year ending December 31, 1926.

Cash and investment holdings of 129 corporations that have made public their reports for 1926 total $2,251,365,355, an increase of $292,134,031, compared with the corresponding date of the preceding year. Working capital of the 129 companies totaled $6,068,601,467, an increase of $451,280,746 over the corresponding date of the preceding year.

The United States Steel Corporation heads the list in total cash and security holdings with $317,933,603, a gain of $22,588,651 over the preceding year. Standard Oil of New Jersey comes next with $210,477,186, General Electric third with $147,536,549, and General Motors fourth with $135,398,386. There are eleven companies in the list with aggregate cash and security holdings of close to $1,000,000,000.

Naturally this great wealth is envied by people of other countries which have not been so prosperous. Some of these people would be quite willing to compel the Americans to give up part of their possessions. Force has often been used for purposes of this sort. This is one of the great reasons for maintaining a protective army and navy, adequate to keep our possessions at home and in our own care.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Sedan

Three Auburn 8-88 Stock Cars Ran Total of:

42,000 miles in less than 14,664 minutes

Daring and unprecedented. Far in excess of any test ever imposed on stock cars. Not done behind pad locks and timed by factory employees, but publicly, under American Automobile Association sanction and supervision.

We decided to go to extremes never before undertaken by any manufacturer in order to completely, conclusively, and overwhelmingly prove Auburn is a faster, more efficient and more durable stock car.

Through blinding fogs; through down pours of rain, under the hottest sun in years; 28 thousand times around the 1½ mile track on slippery boards; never have men and machines endured such abnormal strains!

Nine drivers, working relays days and night, could not over tax the endurance and speed of the Auburn cars. Old records completely smashed from 5 to 5,000 miles for fully equipped stock cars. New records at every revolution of the wheels from 5,000 to 15,000 miles. The speed was phenomenal . . . 34 new stock car records . . .

But What Of It?

We knew all along that Auburn cars are that fast. But, it is not Auburn's proven speed superiority that is most significant . . . frankly, that was easy and incidental. What IS important is the fine character of car necessary for all three cars to survive such speed.

How's This For Proof?

After one of the roadsters had run the unequalled distance of ten thousand gruelling miles, in less than 9,479 minutes at an average speed of over 63 miles per hour, it was taken off the track, thoroughly checked—necessary replacements made—tuned and greased.

Then, for 1,000 miles more, this same car spurted forward at over 72 miles per hour. That proves reserve power, speed and endurance unknown in motor cars until now.

Another Thriller

After 2,637 miles, the Sedan running at about

70 miles an hour speed, turned over on the wet track, during a rainstorm in the middle of the night, slid on its top with all four wheels in the air, for about 50 feet, righted itself and then crashed into the railing. Two doors and three fenders were torn off, radiator and windshield smashed. Seven hours were spent for photographs, radiator and other body repairs and the car went back on the track. It caught up with the other cars, and finished the 15,000 miles at over 62 miles per hour speed. That proves the strong construction, and endurance of Auburn cars, although because in the accident, it lost three fenders and two doors, its entire distance cannot be counted as an official A.A.A. record, but it was officially timed by the A.A.A.

Triple Proof

It would have been perfectly startling if one car had broken all these records, but three Auburn cars were in this test—and all three of them did honor to the name of Auburn.

STATE FAIR RODEO ATTRACTS CHAMPS

Cowboys and Cattle Arriving Daily at Grounds at Columbus

Entries in the International Stampede and Rodeo which will be held in Columbus during the Ohio State Fair, from August 26 to September 5, have come in at such a rate that this rodeo promises to have the largest number of cowboys that have entered at any stampede in the East.

Already fifty cowboys, including several from the Caribou Hills of British Columbia, have arrived in Columbus from Vancouver, B. C., to compete for the $20,000 offered in prizes.

Practically all of the rodeo stars who won their right to the title of champion bulldogger.

Mike Stewart, who was judged the best all-around cowboy and who received the silver loving cup for the champion of the world in bronk riding in May, will again be in Columbus.

Less than a week ago, word was flashed through on the press wires that Mabel Strickland had entered and won another cowgirl contest, and simultaneously with this report came word that she was coming to Columbus to take part in the Rodeo. She and her equally famous husband, J. Hugh Strickland, are westerners by birth and are two of the best known riders and ropers in the world. Mabel Strickland is the only woman who can rope and tie a steer in record time. In addition she is proficient as a bucking horse rider, trick and fancy roper and trick and fancy rider.

CHAMPION STEER RIDER OF VANCOUVER

"Champion" at Chicago, New York, in the Pendleton, Oregon, match Cheyenne and Pendleton last year, also at the great Wembley Rodeo of 1924, will be on the list of contestants at the Columbus Stampede, according to George Hamilton, Rodeo Secretary.

Chief among these champions is Cheyenne Kizer, who has been at the Vancouver Stampede and Rodeo the past week. This will make his second visit in Columbus, for he competed in the Rodeo held there in May under the auspices of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, and won the title of the world's cham-

TELEGRAM ENDORSES STAMPEDE AT VANCOUVER

"Directors of Vancouver Exhibition Association consisting of thirty-three most prominent business men of this city consider stampede and rodeo staged by Peter Welsh here tonight before fifteen thousand people best ever staged at any part of Canada. Personally have seen stampede for twenty years. Heartily endorse these opinions. This testimonial to show is entirely voluntary and I shall be glad to give any further information desired. Prime Minister and other high dignitaries were present."

(Signed) John K. Matheson, General Manager.

And when this same outfit gets under way at the Ohio State Fair August 26 to September 5, the boys will be fresh from their efforts at the Pacific Exposition, at Vancouver, B. C., Canada. They will come to Columbus with new records to defend, or break.

Kirnan Accompanied by Faithful 19-Year Old Pony

What is probably the finest collection of Rodeo horses in the world in the game today will be seen at the 1927 Ohio State Fair, August 26th to September 5th, when Peter Welsh brings his Stampede and Rodeo outfit for a nine day showing.

Among the horses, the most famous, although certainly not the most active, will be Rubio, the 19-year old Sorrel pony owned by Tommy Kirnan, Champion trick roper and rider. Rubio, a present to Kirnan from the former president of Argentina, is certainly the best travelled horses in the outfit. From 1901 to 1916 he toured Canada and the United States with the 101 Wild West Show, covering more than 50,000 miles. He went to the Wembley Rodeo in England with Kirnan. Welsh's faithful Rubio with him, and the old horse can still show the young ones a thing or two.

Significance in Rodeo Ponies' Names

What's in a name? That question has been asked innumerable times on every conceivable occasion. The names of some of the most famous of the bucking bronchos to be used in the Ohio State Fair International Stampede and Rodeo gives some slight indication of the temperament of their owners. Here are some of the names: Tumbleweed, Gravedigger, Rattlesnake, Bombs, Powderface, Yellow Fury, Rodeo Roan, Wildcat, Weasel, Coyote, Skyrocket, Midnight, Sage Queen, and Volcano.

The rodeo stock already shipped to Columbus, comprises 300 head of horses, 50 calves, 5 range cows, 50 black bucking steers and 50 Brahma steers, the property of the Alberta, Stamrod, Ltd.
